

Influenza A (H1N1)

Individuals who are ill should delay travel plans and returning travellers who fall ill should seek appropriate medical care. These recommendation can limit the spread of many communicable diseases, including Influenza

WHO is not recommending travel restriction to the outbreak of Influenza A (H1N1) Virus.

So far no case has been isolated at Souillac Hospital.

This Influenza A (H1N1) was previously known as Swine Influenza but as from 30th April 2009, it is now known as Influenza A (H1N1).

As at 21st May 2009, 41 countries are affected. There are 11,034 confirmed cases and the number of death is 85.